Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I am concerned about possible changes which may be taking place concerning the Universal Service Fund. Currently there is a proposal for a flat fee to be paid, regardless of how much a household or business uses the phone.

It is my understanding that under this proposal people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customer. I am certainly willing to pay for my use, but I do not desire to subsidise others usage. We use our wireless phone for safety and security. It is not something we use just to chat. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses or those who call on a daily basis can pay less than their fair share. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Sincerely,

Tracy Wagner
